Steve Cramer, President and CEO, Minneapolis Downtown Council
Representative of The Trust for Public Land

The Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board is facing challenges in maintaining our award-winning park system while adding new parkland to meet the needs of our growing and changing city. Complex projects, especially downtown and on the riverfront, involve many players. At this forum we will learn about new ways of funding, developing and managing parks. As governments, non-profits and the private sector collaborate, who will protect the public interest?
